Both trains were moving at a high speed, there being a good stretch of track there and the force with which the locomotives met was sufficient for each to destroy the other and to merge their ruins into a mass of twisted steel, scraps of iron, shivered timbers and scattered coal and ashes, the whole moistened and homogeneised by the steam and water from the boliers.

The engineers remained with their engines, and the bodies of both were found in the ruins. Catron's was buried under such a weight of debris that it was not recovered until several hours after the accident. The head and shoulders were disclosed to view for a considerable time before the body, which was held by the wreck, could be lifted out. Harper's copps was found amid the ruins of his cab.

When the Governor arrived at his office
this morning he realized that the vital point had come that he must take some heroic step to prevent the fight at Hot Springs.
Last night he wired Gen. Taylor, commander of the State Militia at Forrest City, and this morning when the Governor reached his office the General was waiting to see him in response to the summons he had recelved. The Governor informed the General that it was necessary that some of the militia should be used to stop the fight, and that he wanted no less than a regiment and one of the best in the Stafe. The First Regiment was elected on account of the close proximity of the companies to Hot track and buried one end partly in the sentenders. The other coach and the caboose remained on the track.

The news of the wreck reached the Mounted Police District in a few minutes and officers were on the way before the ambulance arrived. They had the wounded conveyed to one side to await the arrival of the Hospital Corps, and, assisted by passengers and bystanders, made an effort to search the wreck for the dead. They found Firemen Dunbar and True and carried them to the rear coach of the west-bound train, which had been converted into a temporary hospital.

The bodies of the engineers were also discovered, but that of Catron could not be removed from the wreck.

By the time the ambulance arrived the wounded were ready to be transported to the hospital except those who had deharted in case for their homes or other institution. Dr. T. B. Reynolds, who was a passenger on one of the trains, attended to the needs of the sufferers as well as be could under the conditions.

The wrecking train was brought to the scene of the accident about 1 o'clock a. m. by Superintendent W. G. Brownies. The body of Engineer Harper had been taken out and sent to the Missouri Pacific Hospital, and the first work done was to jack up the east-bound engine and get out the body of Catron. It took half an hour longer to complete the grewsome task. Catron was terribly crushed. The took half an hour longer to complete the grewsome task. Catron was terribly crushed. The took half an hour longer to complete the grewsome task. Catron was terribly crushed. The took half an hour longer to complete the work had stopped, but the crystal was not broken.

About the time that Catron's body was recovered, trains arrived from Kirkwood and Union Station, and the passengers were transferred. The wounded had all been removed, and the wrecking crew was left to complete its work under the supervision of a small group of people whose interest, though based on sheer curiosity and a morbid desire to see all they could of the horrible, was too strong to permi

The westbound train was in charge of Conductor Harry Feldott. The engine was No. 272, and John Harper was at the throttle and George Dunbar was firing. The eastbound train was in charge of Conductor William A. Williams; Chas. H. Catron, assincer, and George True, fireman. Each train carried the usual complement of brakemen and porters.

The trains are estimated to have been going at a speed of thirty miles an hour, although the city ordinances prohibit a speed of more than eighteen miles an hour. It has been customary for engineers to make up time after leaving Tower Grove station, and Harper was pulling his train long at a lively speed.

As he came up to the Spring avenue crossing, it is said, he whistled for the switch to the westbound tracks as usual and was signalled to pull ahead, but the switch opened on the eastbound track. This fact was either not noticed or not heeded. After passing the Spring avenue crossing both tracks are generally clear, and it is claimed that the precautions are not generally observed.

tracks are generally clear, and it is claimed that the precautions are not generally observed.

Both trains had rounded curves at about equal distances from the King's Highway crossing and came on at full speed. It is evident that Engineer Catron first saw the danger of a collision and reversed his engine and pulled open the sand box. It was too late, as Harper's train came on full head and the collision ensued.

It was the duty of the switchman at Spring avenue to switch the west-bound trains onto the north side tracks. This he failed to do with train No. 37, which engineer Harper was pulling. It is nearly two miles from this point to where the wreck occurred and trainmen express much surprise that an old segineer like him should ha sfalled to notice the mistake before the wreck occurred. He had been with the company a long time, but intended to quit the service the first of the month and told Stationmaster Coakley that he was going to engage in a less hasardous occupation.

The scene of the wreck was visited by hundreds of people this morning, but the wrecking craws had cleaned off the tracks by morning as usual.

Passenger trains were compelled to pass the wreck very slowly and the trains ran out of the city limits at a slower speed than usual.

The debris was scattered across both of the tender of Catron's engine and fell over on its side, but was not badly wrecked.

Harper's engine was turned partly across the track and thrown over on the south side. It was so dismantled as to be hardly recognizable. The woodwork was cleared away by workmen and burned, while the iron work was loaded on cars. The boiler was put on a flat car and taken to the scrap heap at the shops, as it is past repair. At noon nearly all signs of the wreck had been removed.

Walter G. Brownlee, superintendent of the Missouri Pacific at this point, was at the wreck all night, and was found at his office, at Twenty-second and Gratiot streets, by a Post-Dispatch reporter just after his return from the scene. He said: "I'm chock full of business and can't talk to you at all. It isn't policy to talk about these things too much, but we can't deny that there was an accident, and a bad one, and that people were killed and hurt. I was at the place of the wreck thirty-dive minutes after it occurred. Both engines were badly damaged, but the injury to the cars was much less than might have been expected. There were three coaches in each train and only the ones next to the engines were damaged to any extent, and this will not amount to more than $500."

"Where do you locate the responsibility for the accident?"

"Where do you locate the responsibility for the accident?"

"That lies between the engineer, John Harper, and the switch-tender at the Spring avenue crossing, whose name I don't know We were repairing or overhauling the right track, outward bound, between Ewing and Spring avenues, a stretch of about haif a mile, and between these two points, since last Thursday morning, we had been using one track for trains bound both ways. The primary cause of the accident was the failure of the switch-tender to throw the outward-bound train back onto the right track when it reached Spring avenue. It is strange that the engineer didn't discover the mistake; but he is dead and of course consure must rest, as far as he is concerned. We hold the train's crew responsible as a whole in a case of this kind-and the engineer and conductor is Harry Feldott, who has been in the service of the Missourt, Pacific 15 years. Harper had served 25 years, and was as good a man as there was in the company's employ; there was no better anywhere. He had his own home at Webster, and while, by reason of seniority in serioe, he would have been entitled to a through run, he preferred the suburban run on account of being able to be at home more, though he made less money.

"Feldott had just finished collecting his west when the collision occurred. He has a finished collecting his between the switchman and the train's case, of

"I don't like to make a statement as to who is directly responsible for the accident," said William B. Doddridge, general manager of the Missouri Pacific railway to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "until I know positively where to put the blame. It is a serious matter and so many different reports have reached me that I will have to make a personal investigation before I am able to decide.

have reached me that I will have to make a personal investigation before I am able to decide.

"On the surface, it looks to me like White, the switchman, is mainly responsible, for not opening the switch, but I can't say yet. The question is, why did the engineer proceed, after entering the wrong track? Investigation will have to be made at every point from the station to the scene of the accident, before I will be able to determine exactly."

Conductor Harry Feldott came in from his home at Kirkwood this morning with Conductor Baxter and made report at the office of Supt. Browniee.

Feldott said that he was busy collecting tickets and did not know that his train was on the wrong track till the baggageman informed him just a moment before the trains met. The baggageman said the train took the wrong track at Frisco Junction and he did not discover it till about two minutes before the wreck.

The name of the switch tender at Spring

The name of the switch tender at Spring avenue, through whose oversight or wilfull negligence the collision occurred, is Charles Whita. He has been in the service of the Missouri Pacific since the strike a year ago last summer. When the strike a year ago last summer, when the strike came on he was working a ditch gang about the Union station for the Union switch and Signal Company. He quit this company and took the place of one of the strikers, and within an hour from the time he began switching he had his left hand mashed, and it had to be amputated. When he was able to work he was given the night trick on this little switching job at Spring avenue, and he has been there ever since. He goes on at 6 o'clock in the svening and is relieved at 6 in the morning.

one of White's acquaintances about the yards doesn't think very well of him. He said:

"There is something queer about White and his actions.

"There is a good deal of feeling against him on account of his course in the strike, and you will hear some pretty hard things said about him. I guess, if you talk around here much. I have known him about three years, but latterly have seen but little of him. I suppose you're looking for him to plach him; he ought to be pinched, as sure as you live, for he's the man who caused all this smashing up and loss of life. I don't know what could have been the matter with him. I never knew him to dissipate to any extent, and I don't know where he lives now, as he goes about from place to place, and nobody can keep track of him." This man, who is a blacksmith on the track work, evidently took the reporter for a detective or an officer in citizen's ciothes. He saked that his name be withheld, as it would endanger his employment to print it. This, in fact, was the state of affairs with all the road men approached. There is a small reign of terror among these people and they shut up like clams when a reporter comes around.

Coroner Wait was on the scene shortly after the disaster. He heard the news in a down-town restaurant. Getting a carriage he went at once to the scene.

"I arrived at Tower Grove Station about midnight," he said, "and there found a wrecking train. I left my carriage and amployed a guide to direct me to the wreck. The scene there made a lasting impression on me. Looming up before me, enveloped in clouds of smoke and escaping steam, was a huge, shapeless mass of broken iron, twisted rods and broken and shattered timbers. In the crowd that surged around the wrecking crew to view the mangled remains of Engineer Catron were several women!

Henry Hollin, a resident on Swan avenue, nearly a mile away, said the shock of the collision sounded like the report of a cannon, awakening the residents in that vicinity. Doors and windows ratiled as if from a miniature earthquake.

Among the passengers on the west-bound train was the wife of Engineer O. Hull, who had been laying off since last Saturday. Had he been on duty he would have had charge of the engine, instead of Charles Catron.

This is the third wreck the Missouri Pacific has had inside the city limits inside of two months. The other two occurred at the Twenty-second street yards. It is claimed that in each instance the wreck was caused or increased in magnitude by the trains running faster than the ordinances permit.

A wienerwurst peddiar established a lunch stand in one of the coaches shortly.

England Threatens to Make a Naval Demonstration to Enforce Her Claims to Disputed Territory.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—The Herald's correspondent in Rio, Brasil, telegraphs that news has been received from the Governor of Pars confirming the report of the passage of British troops through that State on the way to Venezuela.

A special to the Herald from Havans says: The correspondent of an English newspaper has just received orders from his paper to embark at once for Venezuela in anticipation of the demonstration that Great Britain is expected to make at La Gauyara to enforce the demunds of her ultimatum.

Britain is expected to make at La Garyanto conforce the demands of her ultimatum.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—The confirmation that an arbed British force was marching through Brasilian territory to that part of Venezuela claimed by Great Britain will, it is said, bring the international dispute to a crisis at once.

In some quarters fears are expressed lest the negotiations be prolonged until England gets all the solders she wants in the disputed territory. Possession, in lawyas in displomacy, is several points in favor of the aggressor and for possession England, it seems, is playing the trump cards.

PLUNGED TO HER DEATH

Female Hospital Patient Threw Her-self From a Third-Stery Window.

For the second time within two months a Female Hospital patient has committed suicide by throwing herself from a window. Many of the inmates suffer from terrible and incurable maladies. That they should attempt to end an existence full of hopeless pain is not to be wondered at. Yet absolutely no precautions are taken to prevent suicide.

At noon yesterday Mrs. Aima Leary refused to eat her dinner in the general dining room, so it was brought to her ward. Mrs. Maggie McLaughlin, her nurse, waited on her. When she had finished Mrs. McLaughlin turned to the other patients. In a few moments she felt a blast of cold air sweeping into the room. She turned around, saw an open window and Mrs. Leary's cot empty. Then she rushed to the window, knowing something was wrong, and on the stone flagging three stories below she saw Mrs. Leary lying lifeless.

Superintendent Crossen was summoned and he resorted to herole but unavaling measures to save the woman. Her back and both wrists were broken.

Clutched tightly in her hand was found the following note addressed to one of the nurses:

"Mrs. Hays—Mrs. Lansing has $5 of mine."

Mrs. Leary was a mental and physical wreck, through the inroads of an incurable disease. She was at the Protestant Hospital, 1760 Wash street, last summer, and attempted her life there.

Superintendent Crussen of the Fernal Hospital has asked in his report of the suicide to the Health Department that bar ba put in all the windows at the hospital If this is done, he says, it will be impossible for any more of the patients to commit suicide.

According to these communications he was engaged to be married to "Dottle." Levi also boasted to his wife that a wealthy widow in New Orleans offered to give him $20,000 to go an business if he would leave Mrs. Levi No. 2 and come to live with her. This woman is well known in New Orleans, and having nothing to go by but Levi's word, Mrs. Levi, or Mrs. Fulton, as she now calls, herself, after her first hushand, refused to mention the lady's name for publication. months, and she claims was the result of her downfail. He placed her in a questionable resort to make money for him."

Mrs. Fulton is a beautiful woman, with light brown hair and big brown eyes, and she tells, her story in a most dramatic way. At the Prosecuting Attorney's office she recounted her marital troubles and then, as evidence, produced certified copies of the marriage certificates, showing that in 1890 Levi had married Mille Evans in St. Louis and also that she, Mrs. Luis Fulton, had married him in Kansas City, Kan., March 27, 1894. On the strength of the documents a warrant for bigamy was issued.

Returning from the Warrant Office, Mrs. Fulton met Levi at Eleventh and Olive streets. It was the first time she had seen him since she learned of the existence of Mrs. Levi No. 1. She dragged him in a near-by hallway, she says, and showered her wrath on him. She told him what she had learned and beat him about the head with his walking cane. He begged her on his bended knees to keep the matter quiet. "For God's sake, Lulu, don't get me in any trouble," he cried to her, according to the story. "It wasn't my fault. I haven't got any money with which to defend myself. I am in enough trouble now."

Then she let slip about the warrant being issued. He broke away, rand down the street and was soon out of sight. She called for the police, but Levi got away, and it is likely by this time that he is far from St. Louis.

"He also passed some worthless checks," said Mrs. Fuiton. "My mother died at Covington, La. She grieved to death over the way the man treated me, but I allowed my pride to get ahead of me. I had a little money and a nice home and let go of all to support us. He never worked. When my mother died she left about $1,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry. He did his best to get hold of it, but the authorities gave it to me. Then he offered to pay for the funeral expenses with worthless checks. It was my mother, and to think that there should be trouble over her funeral. So I settled what I could.

"He was a queer man and I was afraid of him. When he got me cowed he would boast that his first wife, Cora Lacey, of Nashville, Tenn., only lived one year, and his second wife, Gussie Crail, of Memphis, died in an insane asylum at that place. "When I learned this from his own lips, three weeks ago, I told him to leave. He said that if I would give him $50 that he would go to San Francisco and never bother me any more. I just had $50, but I gave it to him, thinking he would leave me. The next day he came to my house, opened a small paper, which he said contained poison, and poured it in a glass. Then he said he was going to shoot me and afterwards kill himself. He had a revolver. I ran down stairs for a police officer. He opened the front window, poured the poison, or whatever it was, in the street, told me to come back, All this time Dr. K. W. WILL NOT BE OUSTED.

Prof. James P. Slade from the position of Superintendent of the Public Schools at a special meeting held Monday evening and tendered the place to Prof. J. F. McCullough of Springfield, Ill., Prof. Slade is in possession of the office, and said this mroning that he proposes to held on to it in accordance with his contract. Prof. Slade had been asked to resign on Oct. 20, but paid no attention to the matter until the seth inst., when he indited a letter to President Fair brother, saying that he was employed by the board last June for one year at a salary of $1,000, and that he was positive there was not sufficient basis for an excuse to throw up the place, and considered the position of the board arbitrary.

Dr. Fairbrother, President of the Board, says the distinct reason for the action of the Board in attempting to remove Supt. Slade was that the entire body "considered it for the best interests of the East St. Louis schools," and refused to say more.

Prof. Slade has employed legal talent and proposes to fight the matter in the courts if necessary. Mr. Slade does not appear uneasy in the position he has assumed, as he says he is certain the contract he signed with the Board will bind them to pay him a salary at the rate of $16.66 2a a month for twelve months, and then he will step out if the Board wants him to.

He has held the position six years consecutively, and insists that each year he has received the appointment without personal solicitation, this year being no exception to the rule. He has been prominently identified with educational affairs all his life. He was four years the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and held the office of County Superintendent of the Belleville schools four years, and considers that he is sufficiently versed in the legal phase of the question to feel confident the courts will sustain him.

He said:

to the city, and its failure to pay $5,000 a year for its rights and franchises. He said:

"A letter, addressed to the Merchants Bridge Terminal Company by Mr. Sturgeon was delivered to me as its president this morning."

"What will your company do in the premises? Will the $5,000 a year be paid to the city in compliance with the ordinance, or will that long-promised depot be built?"

"I guess I will turn matters over to Col. Jones and let him build the depot."

"Will you ask for further time, or make an effort to avoid the fulfillment of the obligation altogether?"

"I can't discuss that matter now."

"Will you fall behind the claim that in the building of the new Union Station your company has complied with the ordinances, and that the city no longer has a claim for $5,000 a year?"

"It would be improper for me to answer that. I will answer Compiroller Sturgeon's letter to-morrow, and in it I will fully outline the stand to be taken by the company. It would not be right for me to make the contents of the letter public Before it reaches the Comptroller. The latter, being a public officer, can give it to the newspapers if he sees fit, and I will have no objections."

Wash Day and Carpet-Beating in Con-junction Cause a Fresh Outbreak.

For the sixth time the feud between the female contingent of the Dillon and Hurley families has been aired in the Second District Police Court, and for the sixth time the law has mulcted the maternal representatives of each tribe for disturbing their reciprical peace relations and the harmonious surroundings of the neighborhood. Judge Paxson used to have to settle these little matters, but now it's Judge Stephenson, but they both do it the same way. The latter touched them up for ils apiece this morning after a stormy scene in court. They must have had a lively time at the Dillon-Hurley habitat on the lith of last October. It's a wonder some police blotter or heapital record does not show one of these two names, but familiarity with lump coal and iron grates has apparently bred contempt for grates has apparently bred contempt for such things at 2814 Dillon street.

This is the place where the trouble co-curred. The house only has one roof and one back yard, manifestly not enough for grates thurley, with a husband and young ones. Down-stairs lives Mrs. Margaret Dillon, with a husband and young face. In both instances the latter adjuncts cut little ice, save to aid in the fermentation of lifeeling by doing things which are considered inglist, improper in well regulated families. It least, so the cross-fire of allegation maintains.

On this before mentioned Oct. Il Mrs. Dillon did some washing. Then she strung the nice, clean white clothes on a line in the back yard. This was a cinch for Mrs. Hurley. She immediately bethought herself of a carpet which needing awaiting, and she thereupon strung it from the doorway to a post up-stairs on her own porch, mind you, where she had a right to do as it pleased her soverigm self.

She then proceeded to thump all kinds of dust out of that carpet with disastrous results to Mrs. Dillon's fine white linen hung so carefully in the back yard. It didn't do a thing to those clothes, and naturally Mrs. Dillon took exception to the proceeding. She stood underneath the porch with her the popular mind supposes this notorious but unpopular gentleman uses a great deal of.

Mrs. Dillon insisted in court this morning that six bucketsful were dumped on her daughter's head before she retreated, but allowances should be made for her excited frame of mind. At any rate she retreated and started in on a new tack. Seizing a clothes pole she and her daughter succeeded in unbooking Mrs. Hurley's carpet and dropping it into the back yard. Here they cut it into smail pieces and scattered it defiantly to the four winds.

Thus for the instant victory appeared to perch on the Dillon banner and Mrs. Hurley determined to assume the offensive. The coal being all gone she grabbed the iron grate and started down stairs to wipe the whole Dillon tribe off the msp. They could stand coal, but the grate was to hot for them. They fied howling linto the street and Mrs. Hurley returned in triumph to her domain.

The Police Court was the only recourse. Mrs. Dillon got a summons for Mrs. Hurley, and then Mrs. Hurley got a summons for Mrs. Dillon. The principals, with about 30 witnesses apiece, were before Judge Stephenson this morning. The stories they told would have driven Solomon off the bench. Family linen far dirtier than Mrs. Dillon's back-yard clothes, was dragged in, considerable profanity and much nastiness indulged in, Attorneys Wamboff and Watkins even almost coming to blows. His Honor concluded that both women were equally to blame, and fined them each 115 to discourage further controversy.

FORD'S QUEER INFATUATION.

His Love for Melissa Paul Makes His Wife Seek a Divorce.

William J. Ford of 2236 O'Fallon street is known all over town as the man who looks like J. K. Emmett. The physical resemblance between the ex-Kerry Patch butcher and the famous "Yodier" is so striking that whenever Emmett was in town Ford was the victim of many pranks of mistaken identity. He is as well known in the Fourteenth and Sixteenth Wards as Chauncey Ives Filley and Ed Butler.

And like the bibulous Fritz, Ford has troubles of his own, Judge Jacob Klein is hearing testimony in the suit of Mary F. Ford, to which Emmett's double responds with a cross bill. The bone of contention is the custody of two children.

What seats were not occupied by spectators when Ford came into the courtroom were taken by the witnesses in the case Attorney F. A. C. McManus for Ford had summoned fourteen witnesses, and there were twenty-one on hand at the behest of Attorney T. J. Rowe, representing Mrs. Ford. The latter were expected to tell about a yellow girl known as Malissa Paul, together with certain other fallings of Mr. Ford, and Ford's witnesses were full of stories about Mrs. Ford and a man named Harbinger or Harrison, a saloonkeeper.

Ford kept a butcher shop near Twenty-second and O'Fallon streets when he was married on July 4, 1875. It was popular, owing to his resemblance to J. K. Emmett in physical appearance and character traits, and Ford soon amassed a snug little sum, about $5,000, Mrs. Ford alleges in her petition, which he now has profitably invested, although he abandoned his butcher shop when his marital difficulties arose and is now employed as a driver.

Mrs. Ford alleges that about December, 1893, her husband developed a habit of staying out at night and devoting his spare moments to the society of Melissa Paul, who was off color, in other words a mulatto. This and his alleged failure to provide for her properly cathed Mrs. Ford to pack up and leave on January 18 last.

About a week ago, Ford filed his cross-abill, and it was about, as promissing for a sensational trail as wait. Ford neglected ther hous William J. Ford of 2236 O'Fallon street

/ AFTER FITZSIMMONS. Gov. Clarke Dispatches Sheriffs to Intercept the Australian.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 30.—The Governor has located Fitzsimmons. At 1 o'clock this afternoon he received a telegram from Shreveport stating that the puglist was in that city at 10 o'clock this morning, and was accompanied by a man the description of whom tallied with that of Sherin Houpt. The Governor's informant says that Fitz will go to Hot Springs from that point by way of Camden, reaching that city by way of the Cotton Belt. From Camden he will take the Gurdon branch of the Iron Mountain and from Gurdon he will go to Malvern, thence to Hot Springs.

From Camden he will take the Gurdon branch of the Iron Mountain and from Gurdon he will go to Malvern, thence to Hot Springs.

As soon as the Governor received this information he sent for Sheriff Booker and instructed him to leave at once for Malvern, be on the lookout for the Australian, and stay there until further orders. He then wired Jerry South at Hot Springs, requesting him to join Booker at Malvern, and also telegraphed Deputy Sheriff Head at Texarkana to go also to Malvern. Telegrams were also sent to the Sheriff of Columbia, Ouachita, Clark and La Fayette counties to watch for Fitz and arrest and hold him for the Sheriff of Pulaski County. It is believed that Sheriff Houpt, as soon as he gets Fitz in Arkansas, will have him arrested and taken before a Justice of the Peace, who is expected to turn the prisoner over to him. He will then be able to take Fitz to Hot Springs unmolested. After the fight is over, then it is proposed that the puglits shall have his trial in the county.

The Governor admits this afternoon that he can do nothing with the militia unless it can be shown that the Sheriffs are unable to serve the writs or that they are prevented from carrying out the orders of the court in this city which issued the warrant for Corbett's and Fitzh arrest. It is thought that Chancellor Marfin, if satisfied that his court has jurisdiction in Garland County, will call upon the Governor for troops to aid the Sheriff in preventing the commission of a misdemeanor at Hot Springs by the fighters until they have shown cause why they should not be compelled to give bonds to keep the peace.

The situation is becoming quite compilicated here. It was suggested this afternoon that the Pulaski County Court be petitioned to enjoin Fitz and Corbett from fighting until the case now pending against them shall be heard, and in case the injunction should be ignored the Governor should be asked to call out the militia. The Governor thought that if he could act at all he could do so without additional court proceedings,

The Post-Dispatch takes peculiar pleasure in indorsing the principal recommendation of the Ziegenhein Commission which is summed up in the following par-before yesterday ten persons committed suicide in New York. The usua explanation of the bunching of suicides is the theory of suggestion. The suicides of one person suggests it to another, the courage of one infuses courage into another, and so suicide follows suicide until it may be said to be epidemic.

But this explanation does not explain the New York epidemic. The ten suicides of Monday were committed on the same day. The victims had no social or busiconnections and no knowledge of each other.

An inviting explanation is found in the germ theory of disease. There may be a suicide bacillus which attacks the brain and nerves and disposes to suicide. The common remark about suicide being in the air and a "bug" in the head may have a scientific foundation. It is an interesting subject for research.

MR. HADLEY'S SENATORIAL RECORD.

The record in the State Senate of Mr. Hadley, the Republican candidate for Congress in the Eighteenth Illinois Dis-trict, which is presented in to-day's Postispatch is of the greatest interest and aportance to the voters of the district.

Although the issues to be decided by this contest are national instead of State issues, yet the record of a Congressional candidate in a State legislative office is valuable as determining the bent of his mind and the direction of his sympathies. The kind of measures he has favored in State legislation he may be expected to favor in national legislation. The interests with which he was allied in the State he will ally himself with in the national legislature, Ex-Senator Hadley's record shows him as the Post-Dispatch correspondent tersely puts it, to be the "foe of labor and the friend of monophy." He framed and supported measures inimical to organized abor and opposed measures designed to secure justice for workingmen and to curb the power of corporations. It shows him also to be in thorough sympathy with intolerance in matters of education, religion and other subjects appertaining to personal liberty.

Voters of the Eighteenth District, therefore, who support ex-Senator Hadley will cast their ballots for a candidate whose sympathies are alien to the interests of the mass of the people and who is in hearty accord with the oppressive and intolerant purposes of plutocracy and puritanism. They know what to expect of their Congressman if Hadley is elected.

, THE NEW YORK MIXTURE.

Doubtless 99 per cent of the people outside of New York who read that Tammany is smiling over the decision that the State Democracy cannot use the emblem of the rooster on its ballots are wondering why.

If this were the hardest puzzle in New York City politics just now the people who are trying to keep up with them could be happy. Under the New York law each ticket must have a separat emblem, and it looks as if the list of available emblems will be exhausted be fore election day.

Under this decision the State Democ racy cannot use the emblem of the resu-lar Democratic ticket, but must have a ballot with an amblem of its own. But it is only one of many factions which have broken away from the main polit-ical orgalizations.

When may be called the general divisions of New York politics are the deformers and Tammany. The Reformers are divided between the Goo Goo or may be called the general di-Good Government Club party and the Fusion wing composed of the Republicans and other anti-Tammany elements The Goo Goos in turn have two factions and the Fusionists are split into Platt and anti-Platt sections. The Germanhas d Tammany and Fusion into about equal elements warring among themselves, but

The strongest issue in this conglomera the Sunday law question. What will come out of it no one can tell until after the election. But the multiplication of factions and tickets generally works for the benefit of Tammany and unless the Reformers get together the Tammany tiger will wear a broader smile on Nov. than it has worn for many months.

Palmer on Garfield.

From Gen. Palmer's New Book. In my visits to headquarters I formed somewhat familiar acquaintance with Brig.-Gen. James A. Garfield, who had been promoted from Colonel of an Ohio regiment, at the head of which he had won some distinction during a short campaign in Eastern Kentucky. My first impression but somewhat formal, and a little pedantic. His habits were studious, and he devoted himself to the duties, which were those of the chief of staff, assiduously; his conduct was extremely respectful to his chief, Gen. Rosecrans, and considerate and polite to all with whom he was brought in contact. His views of military and politi-cal affairs seemed to be judicious, elevated and liberal, as far as could be judged by his expresisons, but he did not impress me as one who possessed either depth of feeling, or pre-eminent sincerity. He had at that time the conspicuous habit of expressing generous sentiments by apt and often neat, or beautiful quotations from the best authors. His definitions and statements best authors. His definitions and statements were usually exact, but he did not often commit himself upon any doubtful point of military, or political policy, otherwise than by happily expressed quotations. He was ambitious, as was easy to be seen, and furnished proof by his conduct that he would bide his time, and would not be a conduct to replications the misfortunes. likely to recklessly share the misfortunes of either his chief or anyone else.

I was not surprised afterwards when Rosecrans was unfortunate at Chicken mauga, that Garfield so managed as not only to escape the censure to which Gen Rosecrans was subjected, but obtained credit by his easy and useless return to Gen. Thomas on the battlefield.

Poker in Washington.

Walter Wellman in Chicago Times-Herald. I am glad to say poker is playing out in Washington—I mean poker among big people. Of course it is the greatest game on earth and all that, but somehow the people are not pleased to hear of states-men, presidents, cabinet men and Senators indulging much in it, and perhaps the people are quite right. Mr. Cleveland has not played any poker in Washington since he came back for this term, though I fancy he may have had a few small games, just to pass the time, while out on his fishing or shooting trips. Secretary Carisis occasionally has two or three intimate friends up to his house to play draw for a couple of hours, but the limit is never more than 25 cents, and 25-cent draw is about as harmless as muggins. The game at the Carlisles' always stops at midnight.

MALLIE WADE'S SLAYER.

Man Supposed to Be Charles Webb Ar rested in Denver.

The Police Department has received infor mation from Denver of the arrest in that city of a man supposed to be Charles Webb, the murderer of Mallie Wade. The fellow was arrested in Denver on complaint of the authorities in Greeley, Colo., who charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses.

authorities in Greeley. Colo., who charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses.

He gave the name of Jerale Abralter, and said he was a Mexican.

So like did he appear to the description of Webb sent out by the St. Louis police that Detective Delue thought he recognized in him the same person. When taxed with the St. Louis crime the man denied it stoutly, but Chief Desmond was notified. An officer will be sent to Denver to identify the prisoner and bring him back if he should prove to be the murderer.

Charles Webb killed Mallie Wade on the night of May 20, 1895. She was a 19-year-old colored girl, a teacher in the Dumas School at 1412 Lucas avenue. She was well educated and highly thought of. Webb was an Indian with Spanish blood in his veins, handsome but villainous. He had served a term in the Mississippi penitentiary for theft.

Mallie lived with her father at 1725 Texas avenue. She was in love with Webb and he with her, but the girl's father had forbidden him the house, because of his unsavory record. But Mallie used to meet him clandestinely, and this cost her her Mfc.

The murder took place in Webb's sleeping quarters, in the rear of a stable at 2123 Gravois avenue. The couple had been to Jefferson Barracks, for it was Decoration Day, and had returned to Mallie's home for supper. That night she went out again with her lover. She did not come back. In the morning when a search was made they found her dead body in the stable. There was a bullet hole in the left temple and another through the heart. A bottle half filled with wine lay on the floor. The theory is that Webb attempted to drug the girl in order to assault her and, falling in his purpose, killed her in a fit of feelous rize.

is that Webb attempted to drug the girl in order to assault her and, falling in his purpose, killed her in a fit of jealous rage. A thorough search of the city was made by the police, but although Webb was seen by various persons in different parts of the city he made his escape and nothing had been heard of him until the arrest of the man in Denver. Mr. Hagan has instructed the box office man to tell the negroes that they do not pay 1 per cent of the expenses. How can he expect them to do more? The Grand Opera and Olympic will give me seats, and my people seats anywhere I purchase them (that is, in the balcony), and that is where Mr. Hagan has got a coop fixed aside for me. Shame on such a man! If he will discriminate, why don't he do it right? Now, he wants to be upheld by the intelligent people of St. Louis. The negroes of St. Louis are lovers of the theater, but how can they be expected to visit a place like this, where they are to be penned like so many cattle?

I do not ask for more than the other theaters give, but he does not give that. There is to be a cake-walk Thursday night at the theater, something a great many negroes would like to attend, but it will be my bounden duty to urge them not to so, and to impress it upon them that they are not wanted.

I am satisfied that Mebers. Primrose and West are not aware of this fact, or matters would have been different. Because we, the negroes, have great respect for them as gentlemen too far advanced to look upon the negro as anything but for his ability and as a man. W. A. Williamson.

DEFENSE OF THE GOLD STANDARD

Ex-Senator Henderson Champions the Act of 1873.

MR. CLEVELAND INDORSED.

"His Party Does Not Recognize His Worth, but History Will Rank Him With Jefferson."

Especial to The Fost-Dispetch.

LOUISIANA, Oct. 28.—Ex-United States Senator John B. Henderson, at the request of many citizens of both political parties, delivered an address here yestarday on National finance. Right at the outset of his speech Mr. Henderson announced himself as favoring the single gold standard, and defended the Congressional act of 1878, demonetising silver, as wise legislation. He gave a history of gold and silver coinage in this country since the first Congressional enactment of 1792.

He began with the early history of coinage on the principles hald down by Jefferson and Hamilton, while George Washington was yet President; he cited the act of 1792, which established the double unit, and fixed the ratio at 18 to 1.

"Experience," the speaker said, "had demonstrated to the men of that day the utter impracticability of a double standard of value A mistake of a few cents in the commercial value of silver in 1792 had expelled gold from the country and given us an exclusive silver currency down to 1834 A similar mistake on the other side, made at the later date, had now driven silver from circulation and threatened to deprive us of even the smaller fractional coins necessary to the convenient transaction of business. This act of 1853 was intended as a total abandonment of the double standard theory. It was a bold and intelligent piece of legislation, projected on lines of patriotic statesmanship. The men of 1853 were able to grass the necessities of the occasion. They understood the disease and applied the remody. They saw the difficulties in the way of the country's prosperity and proceeded promptly to remove them. There was no one then to set up afters for the vorship of the dead and unpreditable past. No one them went upon the public streets and cried aloud for the "Gollar of the 6ad-dies." Antiquity, especially antiquity allied to regrets and feliures, had no claims upon them. His acceptance of the olicy will make its use by all companies the State imperative. For that reason it. a form of policy to committee is form and policy and will not complete and molicy and will not complete and unit the last of the week.

One of the important clauses of the policy and the one that will cause a great deal of comment and uneasines is the following:

"It is understood and agreed to be a condition of this insurance that in case of any loss under this policy this company is to be liable only for three-fourths of the said loss, not exceeding the sum insured, and the other one-fourth is to be brome by the assured, and in the event of other insurance being permitted thereon, then liable for its proportion only of such loss."

This clause is in the strictest accord with the present insurance laws of Missouri as amended by the last Legislature and the insurance men say that they cannot avoid the provisions.

It is understood that if the policy is adopted with this clause in, an attempt will be made to occure the consent of Supt. Waddill to the employment of special "riders" to cover instances of unusually heavy values. Without some provision of this kind the law would operate severely and disastrously with heavily insured houses. Thus, if a loss by fire were $1,00,000, under the law the companies would be liable only for $750,000.

Queer Record of a Man Appealing for Workingmen's Votes.

THE ANTI-LUTHERAN LAW.

Has an Idea That the Public School System Is but a Republican Political Agency.

pecial Correspondence to the Post Dispatch.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Oct. 35.—The Resublicans of this district would gladly pay

biliteration of the State Senatorial record d during the sessions of 1887 and 1889, a quality which the party managers here now doing their utmost to conceal from

To be specific, the first bill in which Sentor Hadley evinced any interest was one introduced by himself March 30, 1887, entitled "An act to secure the peace and good order of society, to queil riots or disturbances, to secure the execution of the iswand to provide for special deputy sheriffs and for calling out and using the military force of the State for the preservation of the peace and the protection of property." This act invested sheriffs with unlimited power to create deputies in case of labor troubles and instructed him to call for troops. Deputies thus enlisted by the autocratic sheriff were to be armed and paid $2$ a day. In case a citizen were to refuse to act as a deputy he was to be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor and might be fined $200 or imprisoned in the county jail three months. People who dared to jeet or coff at these deputies were liable to instant arrest.

If the sheriff and his armed men found homselves unable to put down the strikers, hen he was commanded to call upon the dovernor to mobilize State troops at the cene of the dispute, empowered to arrest, without process, anyone on view. This bill was referred to a Senate committee and a imilar one was introduced and passed in the House.

Ar one was introduced the Hadley, who had usely guarded and urged the measure. It its stages of passage, called up the bill, obtained a suspension of the, and secured a vote which made the

But Senator Hadley did not rest here. Relentless in his pursuit of workingmen and the unfortunate generally he was not satisfied with enacting rigorous military and police laws, but was diligent in resisting all measures intended to lighten the load of the poor. His action on a bill introduced by Representative Mooney in the Thirty-fifth Assembly exemplifies this trait of Hadle's character. The bill proposed to enable mechanics or other employes obliged to sue for their wages, to collect a reasonable attorney's fee with the amount of the judgment. The words of the bill were:

"When it shall be established by the decision of the court or jury that the amount for which he or she brought suit is justly due, then it shall be the duty of the court to allow the plaintiff a reasonable attorney's fee in addition to the amount found due."

There was nothing but a simple modicum of justice demanded in this bill, for it, was only when a poor man had established his claim for wages in court that he could collect a reasonable attorney's fee. It was meant to protect him against unprincipled employers who frequently withheld wages knowing that the employe could not afford to present his case in bourt through an attorney.

And yet this tardy and trivial act of justice of the sent the court of the property of the court of the property of the case of the property of the court of the property of the Senate with the recommendation that it be not passed.

And yet this tardy and trivial act of jus-ice to wageworkers was vigorously fought by Senator Hadley, new soliciting working-men's votes in the Eighteenth district. He believes that laboring men should be dis-couraged from suing their employers when the latter refuse to pay the wages honestly lue them. Hadley's antagonism to this bill was bold and shameless. As chairman of the Judiciary Committee he reported it to the Senate with the recommendation that to be not passed.

Sepator McDonald, a Democrat, promptly moved that the Senate refuse to concur in the report of the committee, and that instead of being laid on the table, the bill be ordered to a second reading. This motion prevailed. Hadley's vote, of course, was cast in opposition. When placed upon its third/reading the Senator, now shaking hands with miners and other hard-working men, was still found fighting the bill. Finding his protests of no avail he subsided when it came to voting on the final passage of the bill and it became a law without the Senator's vote being recorded for or against it.

As if intent upon emphasizing his enmity against organized labor Hadley took particular pains to urge the passage of the anti-boycott law during his first term. This bill was aimed at labor unions and made a boycott a conspiracy, punishable by five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $2.000. The penalty was made to fall upon officers of any "society" who issued any circular or edict for the nurpose of establishing a boycott. Mr. Hadley voted for the bill when it passed, June 14, 1887.

Mentgomery County.

LITCHFIELD, Ill., Oct. 30 .- The congressional situation in the Eighteenth District is becoming very interesting. Democrats and Republicans are wroking hard. Both parties believe Montgomery the pivotal county of the district. It usually gives a Democratic majority of 500, but has occasionally been carried by the Republicans. Enthusiastic Republicans claim Lane will not carry more than one county, while some of the Democrats claim that Lane will beat Hadley in his own (Madison) county.

The announcement is made that out of the $10,000,000 which Miss Consuele Vanderbilt will receive as her dowry, she intends to give $2,000,000 to the former Mrs. Hamersly, now Lady Beresford. This is to reimburse the Duke's step-mother for her expenditure in restoring Blenheim Castle and settling the liabilities of the estate. This step has been prompted by pure sentiment, for the young lady who has joined her fortunes with the Duke, knows to what length Mrs. Hamersley went in clearing the Marlborough estates of indebtedness. Knowing this, the kindly feeling existing between the Dowager Duchess and herself has led Miss Vanderbilt to insist that this money shall be returned to the step-mother of her husband.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—The newspapers are not inclined to accept as correct the official denial from the Foreign Office of the accuracy of the Times and Globe dispatches telling of the important concessions said to have been obtained by Russia from China.

The Globe, referring to the Foreign Office statement, says: "Something more than an ambiguous official disclaimer is needed to make us disbelieve the statements which not only reach us on good authority, but which are in consonance with the known aim of Russian diplomacy in the far East."

The Westminster Gazette hints that Japan and Russia understand one another and that Great Britain ought to prepare for startling news, adding: "Russia is trying to or has succeeded in squaring Japan. CHICAGO. Ill., Oct. 30.—Chairman Edward F. Cragin and Secretary J. L. Fulton of the Chicago Cuban Committee have been receiving letters from all parts of the country containing offers of volunteer service. Most of the language is couched in highly patriotic style and the writers evidently labor under a stress of enthusiasm for the Cuban cause. A few of them are Grand Army men, and they recite the fact that they stand ready to fight again for the liberty of an oppressed people. Others are business men who have become convinced that the people of the United States should do more than extend their sympathy to the little band of Cubans, and still others are adventurous boys and young men who pare willing to fight Spaniards, Indians, panthure or anything else.

One wealthy man who lives in a Wisconsintown writes that he will donate 100 rifes to the Cubans, provided the Chicago committee will take them in hand and see that they are forwarded to their destination. Willing to Fight for Cuba.

Wexford Co., Michigan, who writes; I was taken sick the 5th day of July; I called a doctor but did not receive any benefit from him, I was going into quick consumption. Had a terrible cough, raised a great deal; had pain through the chest, was very weak and all run-down. I told my husband to get a bottie of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; he did so; I commenced taking it and began to get better. I was not outside of the door yard from July 5th until August 22d. I only took two bottles, and the first of September I was able to do the work for boarders, and have had boarders ever since. It is the grandest medicine ever invented."

The stranger examined the tairnout, led the pub forward a step, and as, the sparks began flying, remarked: "Madam, your hors, namess, cart and wheel are all right. The sparks that the tire draws from the curb stones are merely outward symptoms of the inward aliment. The real difficulty is not with the tire of the wheel, but with its axie, or its 'box.' "Just what the man did next it is not, necessary to state, but in less than ten minutes the entire trouble was ended. He had removed the cause instead of temporizing with the effect. As the lady drove on rejoicing someone remarked: "How few people in the world reason down to the root of things, and at the same time carry in their heads the 'know how' that makes the wheels go round."

The 'Discovery' also cured my child of night-sweats and a weak stomach, which followed an attack of pneumonia. We cannot praise your medicines too highly."

"When I commenced taking your 'Discovery' one year ago,' writes Mr. A. L. Will-ams, of Eagle, Cherokee Nation, Ind. their lives in colleges, medical schools and hospitals, cling to the false, child-like theory of doctoring the tire, as it were, instead of curing the axie, or its "hot-box." They direct their attention to where they see the sparks flying, instead of working upon the hidden spot where the real trouble lies. The consequence is, they never acquire the "know how," which enables them to regulate the wheels of life.

When the sparks of pain fairly fly from a woman's head, her back, her limbs, or the most important and sensitive organs of her body, it is as senseless to resort to "local applications," pain cures, or stimulants, as it is to grease the tire, whip the horse, or drive on regardless of consequences. Those people try to cure symptoms instead of reasoning to the root of things and removing the cause of the disorder. The result is physical patchwork and failure instead of success.

A most conspicuous exception to this rule is the man who, nearly thirty years ago, proclaimed that he would not make such mistakes, but would devote himself to reasoning to the root of disease, and to the discovery of a new principle for its treatment. Many thousand letters of gratitude from ormer patients in all parts of America, have told this physician that he has been successful even beyond his own expectations. This man is Dr. R. V. In his research and practice Dr. Pierce proceeded on the common sense principle that the blood could carry life or destruction to every part of the body. That the liver was the "housekeeper" of the human system. That when the liver becomes disordered the blood is charged with poison which is carried through the body and produces such allments as consumption, heart disease, scrofulous and bronchial disorders, as well as dropsy, rheumatism and "female complaints." His "Golden Medical Discovery" acts especially upon the liver and other excretory organs. It cleanes and the control of the complex of the com

The latest news, however, is a proposition from Pittsburg, offering Hart and Cross for "Lightning Fred." This will not meet with favor in St. Louis. Hart did good work on the rubber in the spring, but toward the end of the season let down considerably, and Cross cannot hold a candle to Ely, even if the latter is sick. That Ely is a sick man there is no doubt, for when he left before the season closed he intimated that he would not return to the diamond, but whether this was morbidness or a bluff remains to be seen. There would be only one redeeming feature in trading him, for any of the players mentioned, and that would be to strengthen the stick work of the Browns with Turner,

INTERNATIONAL REGATTA.

All of the Crack Oarsmen Are Now in Austin.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 30.—The great inter national regatta which takes place in this city the first week in November will be without a doubt one of the greatest acquatic events ever recorded in the world. Already events ever recorded in the world. Already twelve champion scullers are here in training for the battle with the oars. England's champion scullers have arrived and are confident of defeating the Yankees, but from the present outlook it seems that Johnnie Bull will be required to tie another piece of crape on his coat when the race is over. The Americans have been rowing constantly with each other for the past two weeks. and pull an even stroke of about $2.

Hanlon, who once held the championship trophy of the world, and Gaudaur, the present crackerlack, are here ready for the flag to drop. Rogers of Saratogs. N. Y., expects to capture one of the big prizes. John Teemer of $1. Louis says that he will beat Gaudaur sure, and the Pacific Coast champion, Henry Peterson, has chronicled the fact that he will row rings around the whole lay-out.

The unique event of the occasion will be the race for the championship of the world stween the two lady southers. Miss Rosie losenthiem of St. Louis and Miss Tillie shiew of New England, for a purse of $500 at a silver cup. The ladies are in traing, and say they are in the pink of contion for the event.

TURF DISAPPOINTMENTS. Costly Race Horses That Have Proven Utter Failures.

Disappointments on the turf are many and frequently the smartest of horsemen are fooled in their estimation of a thoroughbred. This fact was clearly exemplified when shrewd Byron McClelland sold Buck Massie and bought a counterfeit of the worst sort in Tupto at the same sale for more money than he got for Murphy's promising colt. John Rodegap bought Buck Massie when McClelland sold him, and the colt's St. Louis owner secured him of Rodegap for $5,000. Fleischman & Son of Cincinnati have falled to get back the money they paid for the $25,000 Halma, the $15,000 Ray S. and the $3,000 Halma, the $15,000 Ray S. and the $3,000 Halma, the $15,000 For Senator Irby and they owe him most of it yet. Plerre Lorrilard paid $18,500 for Falsetto and never got him to the post. Phil Dwyer gave $35,000 for Bolero, an utter tailure. Tournament still owes most of the $35,500 which the Keenes gave up for him. G. W. Johnson was a $30,000 disappointment to Dr. Knapp. Runyon cost Walcott & Campbell $13,100 and turned out to be a cheap plater. August Helmont paid $57,00 for Rags. He never won a race in his new owner's colors.

Transfer the Control.

To anyone familiar with L. A. W. politics and matters connected with racing interests it looks very much as though behind the proposed amendment to the L. A. W. by-laws, providing that the organisation relinquish control of track racing, are the same influences which have been at work for some months past in an affort to transfer the control of professionalism to some body more easily moved and controlled than is the Racing Bord.

A few members of the tr. s. piqued by recent failure to diotate to that body the policy which should be carried out with regard to certain questions which have arisen, are undoubtedly desirous of "getting square" with the league and its committee, but it is difficult to believe that the members at large, represented by the national delegates, will allow themselves to be hoodwinked into letting go of what is one of the most active elements of the sport by the cry that "more attention could be devoted to the good roads movement and to the protection of wheelmen's rights by devoting the attention now given to racing to those objects." Both of those objects are excellent ones, and both should receive the attention of the league, but neither can take the place of racing interests in the mind of the average member.

L. C. Jaquish Chief Consul fillinois division of the L. A. W., said that he was in full sympathy with the views of Sterling Efflott on the sunday Times-Herald's interview. "I certainly agree with Mr. Elliott in every particular." and Mr. Jaquish. "The League is the proper and logical organization to control racing, and it is the only body that could do it satisfactorily. I understand that Mr. Potter's idea is for local athletic associations to have charge of the races, but their rules are so different and their acquaintance with these matters is necessarily so limited that each a plan would result in confuson and diseasisfaction. TALE OF A COUNTRY RUN. City Hall Bicycle Quartette Which Came to Grief.

There are a number of enthusiastic cyclist at the City Hall. Prominent among them are Election Commissioner Flewellyn L. Saunders, Harbor and Wharf Commissioner C. H. They started out Saturday after oon in gay spirits. They returned Sunday n sections and now they are not talking in sections and now they are not talking much about their trip.

All went well until the party had nearly reached Fenton, on the Gravois road. While coasting a hill Mr. Richardson attempted to avoid colliding with some children. He succeeded, but struck a tree instead. The children escaped with a fright and the tree lost a little bark. Mr. Richardson also lost some bark and his wheel was permanently crippled. He managed to reach Kirkwood, where he took the train back to St. Louis.

The rest of the party continued on their way to Hillsbore and De Soto, accomplishing altogether 125 miles. But they are not bragging about this feat to any extent. All are able to be about, but there is a noticeable stiffness about their movements. It will be a week before any of them recover their accustomed agility and it will be a year before they attempt another country run.

"SERGT. STONE."

Romance of a Mysterious Soldier of Cavalry Troop B.

The soldiers of Troop B wondered what was the matter with Sergt Stone.

For the last three months he had been moping. He would seek out-of-the-way corners and sit with his chin resting in the palm of his hand, his eyes staring vacantly at space. He cared nothing for the society of the soldiers of the fort. Even those who tried to be friendly had their advances the field since with tried to be friendly had their advances rudely repulsed.

The long, hot August days dragged their weary length slowly along. Each morning the sun arose in exactly the same spot, and passed overhead like so me white-hot passed by a sun arose in exactly the same spot, and passed overhead like so me white-hot passed by a sun and the same pittlessly down on the fort situated in the midst of the dreary New Mexico desert. All around was sand, sand, nothing but a waste of gray rock and shifting sand, relieved here and there by withered tufts of buffalo grass. Not a tree in sight, not a hill or a mountain; only that monotonous plain and the same unchanging prospect. The heat was intoling, burning heat.

Stone was a mystery to the rest of long, hot August days dragged their unpopular and was left severely alone.

Three years before Stone had left his home in the Southern State with the intention of naking something of him-relf. And this was the outcome? A serresant under an assumed name in the regular army with tils a month pay?

And Adele—what if she knew? The last time they met it was a moonlight inight. They sat on the wide gallery sourrounding her home. The harvest moon poured a flood of silver light about them as they talked long and earenstly of the future. They had been sweethearts ever since they were calidren. The two places were adjoining, and they used to go to school together. He carried her pooks for her and protected her from other boys when they attempted to tease her, and they always had said that when they grew up they would be married. But he fell into bad ways. Idleness, money to wpend and had associates had nearly ruined him, and now he was 55 years of age and had never worked a day in his life.

She promised to marry him if he would go away and make something of himself. She despised an idle man, she said, and she gave him two years to do it in. And he was not to write to her unless he achieved success.

"Will you be true, dearest?" he asked.

"As true as steel. It is my love for you that makes me impose these conditions upon you. I want the man I marry to be something more than a mere drone. I want you love, to be looked up to and respected. I want you to go out into the world and wrest from it the living it owes you, and make, your own way alone and unaided, for the man who cannot take care of himself is not worthy to have a wife to care for."

"Well, so be it," he answered. "I leave to morrow and won't come back until I have achieved something, until I have the respect of my fellow men and your confidence."

"Say au revoir, but not good-by—Love liveth still; Love cannot die."

As she finished a mocking bird wakened perhaps by the music and moonlight, began to pour forth its soul in melody from the recesses of a moss-hung live oak.

"That is a bad omen, the negroes say—to hear a mocking bird sing at night," said Adele.

He took no notice of the remark, but asked slowly:

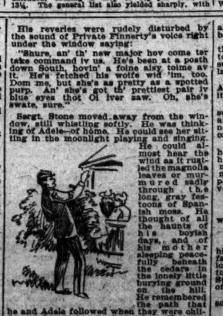

"Will you be true?"
She looked at him a moment and answered;
"Love cannot die."

And again the mocking bird sang from the moss-hung tree.

And that was three years ago. He, true moss-hung tree.

And that was three years ago. He, true to the agreement, had struggled manfully, for awhile, to make his way and earn his reward. But he was weak in perseverance. He tried almost everything, and gradually sank lower and lower. At last, half crased with drink, he enlisted in the army, and was sent to the plains of New Mexico.

A soldier ran across the parade ground and up to the steps of the Major's house.
"What's the matter?" asked he fargt. Stone has killed himself," answered the soldier.

The moon rose in its full grandeur, and the mellow radiance silvered everytains, toning down the rough prospectus, antil it seemed as though the path to an enchanted land was opened to him.

"Three years ago to-night since I saw Adele." he murmured to himself. "Well, it won't be long till I see her again."

It was growing lata, and "taps" would sound. He went out for one last walk around the parade ground, and as he neared the Major's house the distant tinkle of a guitar attracted his attention.

"The Major's wife must be musical," he mused. Then he remembered that he had been told that the Major had been married only a few months. He drew nearer to the house and listened. The player began to sing in a fresh, sirilsh volce:

"Say an revoir, but not good-by; Love liveth still; love cannot die."

"I were better far had we not met; I loved you then—I love you yet."

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 10.—In his annual report, Commissioner William Loehren of the Pension Office, under the heading. "Patriotism and Pensions," says:

"Those men who enlisted early and fought the battles of the war were not moved by mercenary confiderations, and unless actually disabled did not show the haste in applying for pensions manifested by those who enlisted near the close of the war for large bounties and did little actual service, and who are now the noisest in clamoring for more pensions. As compared with this latter class the real soldiers of the war have been modest in preferring claims for pensions."

DO WE OWN ALL ALASKA?

Great Britain Is Preparing to Lay Claim to a Part.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 30.—The of the joint commissioners appoint for the convention made in 1802 b freat Britain and the United States Great Britain and the United States for the survey of the territory of the United States and Canada 'adjacent to the boundary line dividing Alaska and Canada will be made in the course of the next three months. Gen. Duffield, Chief of the Coast and Geodetic Buryey, is the commissioner on behalf of the United States, and D. F. King serves in a like capacity for Great Britain. The purpose of the survey is to furnish a basis for the detarmination of the line from lat. It dee. 40 min. north to where the boundary line encounters the ldist deg. of longitude, which runs northward, making the castern boundary of Alaska. Gen. Duffield's nasistants, L. F. Dickens and B. A. Welcker, have been in the field all summer, and are now engaged in working out their data. Under the treaty between Russia and Great Britain, fixing the boundary lines of Alaska became the property of the United States the boundary line was to run from the point where the Portiand Canal intersects the boundary line was to run from the point where the Portiand Canal intersects the boundary line was to run from the point where the Portiand Canal intersects the boundary line was to run from the point where the Portiand Canal intersects the boundary line was to run from the point where the United States territory under the treaty is a strip of land ten marine leagues along the coast.

Along the coast are a series of Islands, beginning with Prince of Wales Island to the southward, known as the Alexander Archipelago, and when the reports of the survey are made the question as to whether the ten marine leagues line is to run inland from the line of these islands or from the mainland, and as to whether the coast lines shall be considered to run from headland to headland or to follow the actual coast line with the canal coast line must be determined under the convention by the President and Secretary Olney on behalf of the United States and Queen Victoria and Sir Julian Pauncefote on behalf of Great Britain.

Sir Julian Pauncefote on behalf of Great Britain.

The Canadian maps now make the boundary line run ten marine lesgues from the outer coast line of the islands of the Alexander Archipelago, showing that Great Britain is already prepared to make a contention for that line. The point at which the Portland Canal crosses the 56th deg. of latitude has been determined, and also the point at which the ten marine leagues line meets the ldist parallel. Mount St. Elias, it has been ascertained, is in long. 160 deg., 47 min. west.

In some respects, a more interesting problem, which Gen. Duffield is now at work on, is the determination of the points at which the ldist deg. of longitude (the eastern boundary of Alaska) crosses the Fortymile Creek and the Yukon River, as this boundary may involve the ownership of some of the gold properties now developing there. From the information Gen. Duffield has, he gives it as his opinion that all of the gold properties of the Tukon and Fortymile Creek are within the jurisdiction of the United States.

KILLED BY ANOTHER BOY.

Mystery Surrounding the Death of Ed-ward Illsten Explained.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 30.-The murderer of Edward Illston, the 14-year-old son of W. F. Illston, a prominent farmer, has been arrested.

Young Illston had been missing for fifteen days last Sunday morning when his dead body was found in a field near the road, within a mile of his home, with two builets in his brain.

David Coulter, IR years old, was arrested and taken before Justice Marple, where he made a confession. He was bound over to the District Court and was taken to the penitentiary at Lansing for safe keeping.

Coulter said the killing was accidental, claiming that he stumbled and that the gun exploded, the builet hitting Illston in the head, and that he hid the body to avoid being connected with the killing. The two builet holes in Illston's skull are not explained, however. The team which the murdered boy was driving has been recovered where Coulter had disposed of it.

Fire at Springfield, O., Confined to the Lagonda Hotel.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 30.—Connection was secured at 3 o'clock this morning with Springfield, O., dept. The train dispatcher there says: "Two engines arrived at 2:15 this morning from Dayton, and with the assistance of the local department the fire was soon gotten under control. The flames were confined to the Lagonda Hotel building, the interior of which is completely guited, together with all the stores, offices, etc., located in the building. A number of the guests of the hotel were taken out in a semiconacious condition from the effects of smoke, but it is thought that all will recover. So far as I am able to learn at this hour, no one was severely injured further than above mentioned. The telephone system, the lines of which pass the Lagonda Hotel block, is completely useless, and no communication can be held with any part of the city by that means. The Western Union Telegraph office, which was located in the hotel block, is also destroyed, and no wires running through the office can be worked. The fire is still burning brightly within the building, but will be kept within its limits. No estimate can be placed upon the loss, but I should say it will be unwards of $55,000."

The Lagonda Hotel, which caught fire at midnight, was situated at the corner of High and Limestone streets, in the business portion of the city. It was in the corner of a square of business blocks containing Kennar & Wren's large dry goods house, the Second National Bank, Western Union Telegraph and Postal Telegraph companies, and other big stores. The inmates of the hotel were almost suffocated with smoke before they escaped.

When the hotel roof caved in Dayton was appealed to for aid. All communication with Springfield was cut off for some time.
